

We believe that event-driven architectures will be an integral part of all IT systems in the future. We help companies to create value through event-driven ecosystems. We are a team of real-time data lovers, innovators, and pioneers and we are looking for a new family member:

Event-Streaming Architect / Builder (100%)

Your role

- As an architect you lead customers to commit to, plan and build a future oriented technological vision with event-streaming technology
- That means you understand event-streaming paradigm and its relevance on enterprise architecture and you can communicate it to our customers in their language
- You help our customer to move from ideas to implementation by identifying a problem focus in their current legacy world that allows them to realize quick-wins with event-streaming technology
- You help leading projects on tech level, diving to hands-on coding work where needed/wanted
- Open mind towards technologies, especially open-source technology, not fixed on specific solutions
- You are fine with architecture work and development work. Depending on project phase you switch consulting to hands-on coding

Your profile

- Strong technological background with real, hands-on experience in data architectures, event-driven architectures, streaming systems and big data
- Experience as senior software engineer (> 5 years), knows state-of-the-art software development patterns and ability to write clean code
- You are an honest and empathic communicator. You are ambitious with a bias for action
- You have worked in an enterprise and know the challenges IT architecture is facing today
- Professional communication with customer in text and voice in German and English

We offer

- Change! A place where you can make a difference and people who value your action and support you on your path
- A young, dynamic, and non-bureaucratic environment with a lot of flexibility (Yes! We support home office and flexible working hours).
- And a few more things. We have a Ping-pong table, we play Table soccer and of course we have our self-branded beer.

Are you interested?

Send us your CV at mission@spoud.io and let's have a virtual coffee.*

*Please do not contact us if you are a recruiter or an agency, we only accept direct applications. Thank you!

